

Presentation and dissemination of the results of the Inclufar Project

4th and 5th of September 2015, Weide - Hardebek, Germany

Agricultural ventures offering social care services can make a significant contribution to the promotion of public health. This has been proven many times through successful services for people with special needs. Still, material and capacity problems of special education systems often hinder a dissemination of such offers.

The aim of the INCLUFAR project has been to support the transfer of an occupational profile, a didactical handbook and a curriculum for professionals in related sectors. The products and results of the project introduce the entrepreneurs, managers, teachers, nurses and social workers to the potential of the inclusive “green care” approach.

We herewith invite you cordially to the closing meeting of the Inclufar project, where the project results will be presented and further steps will be discussed; please find the preliminary program below.

The meeting language will be English. German translation will be provided upon request.

Address: Hof Weide 7, 24567 Bimöhlen, Germany
